Honor to whom Honor is Due.

Now that the Presidential contest is over, and the great battle has ended disastrously for the friends of Constitutional Right; and now that the sun of our country's glory has set in gloom and darkness, it is not less our pleasure than our duty to bear testimony in behalf of those who were true to the faith that was in them. It is not enough to say that the Whig party fought hard and fought nobly in the cause of principle and rath-they did more than this. They gave up every thing to their country, and did all that men could do to rescue her from the dangers that beset her; and which, most unfortunately for her peace and prosperity, and the happiness of the people, have at length overwhelmed her. They strained every nerve, and stretched every tendon, in the fight; they tolled by day, and watched by the camp fires at night; and all was freely done for the honor and glory of the Republic, and for he love of him who has proved himself the truest of her sons, and who stands up, even in defeat, "the noblest Roman of us all." He, their great leader, is beaten, but he is not on that account less dear to his friends—they stood by him in his resperity, and they cling to him in his adversity. His defeat under any circumstances, and now especially, when it has been effected by the foulest lands upon the elective franchise, and by votes manufactured for the time and the purpose, only ighters his hold upon their affections, and make hem press him more warmly and closely to their yearning bosoms. He has been slandered and reviled as mortal man never was before, but his character has not suffered from the encounter; it still survives the shock. In all that is enpobling a patriotism, all that is precious in intellect, or enviable in public virtue and private honor HENRY CLAY towers as high above his enemics s does the highest peak of the Andes above the ace of personal invective and abuse, but, like the holy youths spoken of in Scripture, he has come forth unhurt by the flames, and unscorched and unscathed by the conflagration which burned and blazed around him. The vulgar and the reckless may continue to spend their malice upon him, and the demons of party, who have raved at and cursed him in the past, may rejoice over his ill-fortune in the future: but, thank God, they can

We here repeat our declaration that the Whigs, as a party, fought nobly under their great leader : and at this moment they are prouder to have thered his defeat than the Opposition feel amid all their joyous shouts at the success of his competitor. But, in paying an humble tribute to our gallant party, we cannot forego the satisfaction to know, made the heaviest sacrifices for the the cause and his deep devotion to HENRY CLAY Those only who stood near him and shared his the value and his extent of exertions.

t gives us to speak of one for whose services all should be grateful-we allude to the Hon. WILus Green, of Kentucky. He, we have reason the pith felt for them would be slight. cause, and that too with no feeling of self-interest or personal aggrandisement influencing his conduct. His labors were a free offering to his country, and all he did was for the love he bore onfidence and his counsels can fully appreciate left nothing undone which honorable warfare would justify; nothing which seemed compatible with the high calling of truth; nothing which was worthy of a just cause, or in the least calculated to promote its triumph. And, calamtous as the result has proved, deep as the distress of the Whig party is, and keen and bitter as the melancholy reflections of some may be, no man can reproach him with a want of firmness, or with indifference to or neglect of duty. All his time and all his thoughts were given to the great ssue, and never for a mement did his energies flag or his exertions tire. His anxiety was all covered among the Chinese which were supposed to be only known to European and American the while deep and intense, and, as the trial day approached, sleep scarcely ever touched his eye lids. Here, at the seat of Government, entrusted, as chairman of the Whig Congressional Executive Committee, with the supervision of, and to a certain extent controlling, the Whig action throughout the country, he watched the move-ments of the Whig forces, and bade them on to battle; and, when others fell back and fainted by the way side, he stood up more firm and faithful to the work, thinking of nothing, hoping for nothing but the success bothing, and caring fo of HENRY CLAY and the country. Under his direction, and that of the Hon. GARRETT DAVIS the partner of his toil and sharer of his feelings, thousands of public documents and political tracts vindicating the principles and measures of the Whig party were scattered broadcast over They were not, however, intended to reach the prejudices or to pander to the low and grovelling instincts of human nature; they were addressed to the calm reflection and soher TA house in St. Louis, occupied by J. H. Corbel, was destroyed by fire on the 5th; loss judgment of the people; they were maniv, straightforward appeals to the popular intelliabout $2,000. gence, and there is no doubt that for the most part they served their purpose; for it cannot be denied that, aside from the foreign influence brought to bear on the elections within the last three months, a decided majority of the country is Whig in principle, in feeting, and action. In view, then, of these facts, and with a full knowledge of his self-sacrificing spirit and disinterest-odness, the Whigs of the Union owen debt of gratitude to this well-tried soldier which it beomes them always to remember. His voice was mingled with theirs in the heat and din of the contest, and the same calamity that has befallen them wrung his generous hear and fur-

New-York, Deo, 1, 1883.

Gentlemen—Parental feelings induce us to make the following statement of facts in relation to the important cure of our little daughter, wholly effected by the use of Sands's Sarsaparulla. For nearly three years whe was utilicted with a most inveterate eruption on the body, which at times was so had, connected with internal disease, that we despected of her life The complaint commenced in the roots of the last; and gradually spread until the whole head was enveloped, and then in attacked the ears, and ran down the neck, and continuing to increase until it covered the most of the body. It commerced with a small jumple or pushie, from which water at first discharged; this modificate freattiching and burning; then matter or pushing the modification of the clinic were so great or pushing the modification of the child were so great almost wholly to prevent natural rest, and the pass discharged intelly. The sufferings of the clinic were so great almost wholly to prevent natural rest, and the doctor on the dictargets so officiaries a nake is discusted. The disease

Dara Sir.—Having just recovered na most severe Chronic Rheumstem, with which I have been afflicted for many years, and having used various remedies without any more minduced to writ to you in respect to Sand's temperalla, to which valuable medicine I now owe my present enjoyment of health. Despairing of ever recovering from this distressing disease, and while laboring under the most acute agony and pain. I was persuaded to try the Sanaparilla to highly recommended for the euro of Rheumstism. I tried one bottle, and the little benefit I derived from that one, induced me to give it a fart trial, which I did by sending down to you for half a dozen bottler; and am now happy to say I find myself, for the first time in twelve years, well and able to attend to my accessary duties. I send you this through a feeling of gratitude, due this valuable remody—Sanda's Saraparellia.

defeat, but avenge the wrongs of HENRY CLAY. Remember that the overwheiming defeat of the Roman forces on the field of Cannæ was followed soon after by the expulsion of Hannibal, flushed with victory, from the gates of the Imperial City. Ay, remember too, that Washington's retreat across the Delaware with a few regiments of half. clad and half-starved soldiers, in one of the darkest hours in our Revolutionary struggle, was sig-nalized soon after by the rout of the enemy's forces at Trenton in the midst of their revelry and re-joicings. New-York, 15th Nov. 1844.

I am a Whig and voted for Morris Franklin for Mayor—I read the Tribune duily, and with the blessing of God will continue to do so, during the Editorship of H. Greeley. I do cordially approve the course of the Tribune before and since the Election, and I hope the Editor will run up the Whig Standard, and nail the principles for which we have so long contended at the mast head. Only let the Whigs stand by their lofty principles, neither bending to this or that faction, principles, neither bending to this or that faction, and our army will stand together and make Loco-Focoism tremble. let our folks go to them. We are conquered by fraud and rascality, and we are. Henry Clay is defeated—and that is enough to break almost any man's heart—but I ask you if it would not hurt Mr. Clay's sensibility to see us desert our principles and sink into the insignificance of "Native Americanism." Yours, with true regard, EIGHTH WARD.

CONFLICT WITH A MAD DOG .- Mr. Happoldt of this city met with a great misfortune a week or two since, in the loss of a fine pointer by hydrophobia, and under circumstances of uncommon peril to himself. After shooting until past mid-day, observing that his dog became dischedient, and exhibited a suspicious repugnance to water, he tied it with a handkerchief to a sapling, leaned his gun against a tree, and ate his lunched a few yards off. On returning toward his gun, he found the dog, evidently mad, in the act of tearing itself loose and making at him. Without being able to reach his gun, Mr. H. ran into into some water near, and stood on a log until the dog had gone out of sight. He was then re-turning for his gun, when suddenly the dog rushed upon him over a hillock, and he only being bitten by seizing the rabid animal by the throat. A struggle ensued between them for more than half an hour, requiring the exertion of all the muscular power of the assailed, while the dog mangled its tongue dreadfully and covered Mr. H. with foam and blood. He at last succeeded in getting off his belt, putting it around the dog's neck, and buckling it to the stem of a small hush; he then regained his gun, and shot the dog. Mr. H. though he fortunately escaped without a scratch, was much exhausted, and the muscles of his arms were swolen from the exertion for two days after. [Charleston Mercury. SHOCKING ACCIDENT .- A most shocking casualty occurred in Concord, Friday evening last, while the Loco Focos were celebrating the tri-umph of Polk and Dallas in New York by the firing of cannon. A Loco-Foco came in town on Tursday and spent the whole afternoon in trying to get what he thought a fair price for his wheat. In most of the Southern Counties," he presumes, "the proportion is still greater."

DREADFUL ACCIDENT.-Henry Moore, son of Henry E. LOVE AND POISON.—Early yesterday morning a tailor of this city was found in a state of lethar-gy in his shop. He was immediately taken to his boarding-house when it was ascertained that he had been taking some poisonous drug. Physicians were called to his aid, and proper remedies resported to, which soon gave him relief.—

Love, the "real article" itself, was the cause of this melancholy affair. [Boston Post.] and the dry goods store of A. B. Crane of Taunton, Mass. were broken into and robbed on the night of the 9th. Loss of the former $800; of the latter $2,000.

by a man sprintly in its motion by the ingenious urrangement of the manual type in the same function by the ingenious urrangement of our paractive a glit bell four and a half one way, and the same number of times the other. At the upper end of the rod is an intensious and delicate double leter movement, reaching to the escapement, which it catches and leaver without any sensible friction. The spring then react upon the ball, nided by its own gravity, and the rotary motion is continued, the escapement controlling the pendulum as in other clocks. This issi's hollow and has an internal apquaratis, by which its rotary motion is regulated. There are four small weights at right angles to each other, two are mountis upon a wire, which is a horizontal diameter of the globe.—
The wire has on it the thread of the screw, and each turn of it.

This clock is not put out of beat easily—it requires no oil on the pullets.

The pullets, and the pullets of the rwing wheel are 80 times less, or in the pullets, is 60 years in making as many revolutions as the 80 inch or second pendulum clock does in one year. In fact a wright of 7 pounds keeps in motion each part of the time and critical machinery for 54 weeks.

The hours are struck by means of a rotary hammer. The estilicates of the American Institute show that in May, 1841, one of the twelvemonth clocks was placed with them, and that it has performed in all respects as was expected.

The prices are moderate. The pullic are invited to call and examine for themselves.
